HERE AND THERE.

It really seems as if summer were near.

One hears the young people say, "It's time to get ready for the summer."

And some of the older people say, "It's time to get ready for the summer."

Board of Health.

The newly appointed Board of Health Inspector, W. B. Corby, assumed duty on Wednesday. One of his first official acts was to order the removal of a dead horse from the street. In the absence of a regular police force, the duties of such an office as the Health Board Inspector might be greatly enlarged with benefit to the town.

Nuisances and annoyances of greater or minor importance are constantly occurring which might be abated or regulated by some such office. As a matter of course an enlargement of the field of duty would necessarily be followed by an enlargement of salary.

No very great amount of labor can be expected for fifty dollars per year. Tramps abound both male and female. Inspector

Corby had one of this latter class arrested on Wednesday. The keeping of cows and other animals should be subject to such regulations as would prevent a nuisance being inflicted on the community. The Inspector was called on during the week to regulate a matter of this kind. Power to act in the matter belonged to the State Committee, but neither of the Committee were in town.

After the testimonial concert given to Mr. Wm. C. Carl on Wednesday evening of last week, Miss Lowell, Mr. Carl, Mr.

and Mrs. George Cook, Mr. and Mrs. E.

W. Morris, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Madison were invited by Mr. Augustus T.

Morris to an informal supper, given at his residence. After the good things were disposed of all repaired to the beautiful music room, recently completed by Mr.

Morris, where some fine selections were given by Mr. Carl and Miss Lowell on the violin. The instrument sounded finely in its new quarters, and the acoustic properties of the room were pronounced to be perfect. After pleasant talking, interspersed by music, the friends, except Miss Lowell, who was the guest of Miss Mabel Morris for the night, separated, having spent a delightful evening, thanks to Mr. Morris's generous hospitality.

Early this season Watson & Co. made a purchase of all the best patterns of these trousers in the market, and now they are in such great demand by Merchant Tailors who want them for custom trade that they could sell them over again at a large profit—but they prefer to make up and divide these among their customers at $5 and $6 a pair, as they are just the thing to wear with an
